

What is being done to improve energy efficiency of digital TV equipment?

Contributed by Administrator
Wednesday, 20 February 2008

Various actions are being taken to encourage the reduction of energy consumption for digital TV equipment as far as possible:

- consumer information from Digital UK and Government is highlighting the "Energy Saving Recommended" logo, and its use on digital TVs and set-top boxes with relatively low levels of energy consumption;
- manufacturers are being encouraged to reduce both the "on" and the stand-by power consumption of household appliances through the adoption of design improvements, voluntary codes of conduct, and best practice guidelines and targets;

Government is committed to using its own purchasing power to bring forward more sustainable products.